ATTACK NEGRO CITIZEN STATUS

14th Amendment Not Constitutional, Claim AIMS AT COHEN

Injunction Would Oust New Orleans Negro Comptroller

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 6.—An attack on the validity of the 14th amendment of the United States, granting the franchise to negroes, was seen in a suit to be filed in federal district court here today, seeking to restrain Walter L. Cohen, comptroller of the local customs, from holding office.

The court action, which will be filed in the name of H. E. Bolts, attorney of Washington, D. C., is based on the charge that Cohen is of negro extraction and declares the 14th amendment is invalid because, it is alleged, the amendment was not approved by three-fourths of the states as required by law. The petition also charges the amendment was not adopted by the required two-thirds vote of both houses of congress.

TRAFFIC CASE BRINGS A TILT

Barrier Claims Too Much Traffic Law

Charging "entirely too much discrimination in the police department," N. M. Barrier, Jr., this morning asked the city commission for strict enforcement of laws against the so-called "reservation" as well as traffic laws. Barrier was hailed into corporation court on a charge of violating traffic laws, his car being given a red tag.

Barrier said he spent one hour and 15 minutes in court this morning with his red tag, saying he did not find out exactly what he was charged with.

"It seems to me there is entirely too much discrimination in the police department — too much enforcing of traffic laws in the most minor points. The 'reservation' is running wide open, and no attempt is being made to curb it."

Mayor Logan suggested to Barrier that he plead guilty of overtime parking.

"I think I was there about two minutes," Barrier replied.

"I think there are also laws against houses of the reservation, and I wish you would look into that," Barrier answered after Logan called attention to the traffic laws.

Wade was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct brought by his wife, Catherine, who alleged that her husband beat her last night. Wade denied beating his wife, but admitted that he might have called her names during a quarrel. The magistrate asked Mrs. Wade what she thought would be a fair sentence. She replied, "ten days." Wade, however, said he thought fifteen days would be about the right penalty, and Magistrate Golden very cheerfully agreed with him.

EX-PLAYER WRITES OBIT., TRIES TO DIE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—Increasing the wish that the city newspapers give a complete account of his death, Harry William Webb, 27 years old, former aviator and real estate salesman, attempted suicide in his apartment at 1330 South Olive street, by taking poison, police reported. Other tenants in the apartment heard groans in his room and called the police. Webb was taken to the General hospital. His condition was reported serious. Police detectives asserted Webb left his obituary, neatly typewritten, also a group of pictures, for newspaper use. He wrote that he was "another sad failure."

RESCUED MINERS QUIT TO SEEK NEW WORK

SUBLET, Wyo., Oct. 6.—The Wyoming coal mining industry has lost three of its best pick men as a result of a disaster in mine No. 5 of the Kemmerer Coal company here. Three brothers, Denver, Jake and Spencer Hyatt, all married and members of the band of 12 survivors who reached the surface early after the explosion, took a vow never again to enter a coal mine. The three men, according to coal miners here, made these pledges to their wives and members of their immediate families shortly after their rescue from the depths of mine No. 5.

SCHOOL SALES COURSE READY

First Hi Classes to Start Wednesday

Securing Miss Ada Terrell, of Canyon, Texas, for instructor in the salesmanship courses in the Port Arthur high school, actual work in this branch of the new vocational education department of the schools here starts Wednesday, school officials announced today.

Miss Terrell is a graduate of the University of Texas, and also of Carnegie Tech., of Pittsburgh, Pa., specializing in salesmanship work. She comes to take charge of this department in the Port Arthur schools with recommendations as one of the best instructors in the United States, school officials said.

Through arrangements with the Retail Merchants association, students enrolling in the salesmanship classes will have about three hours actual experience in downtown stores each day, and the class work at the high school also will average three hours, school officials said.

The salesmanship courses will be given free of charge, and the class room instruction will be open to outsiders as well as regular high school students.

LINCOLN'S KIN GOES ON TRIAL

Accused of Slaying Wife, Brother-in-Law

GENEVA, Ill., Oct. 6.—Claiming mental insanity, Warren J. Lincoln, lawyer, horticulturist, and distant kinsman of Abraham Lincoln, went to trial here today on a charge of murdering his wife and his brother-in-law, Byron Shoup, in April, 1923.

Despite the fact he once admitted the double slaying and led police to a cement block in which the heads of his victims were entombed, Lincoln entered a plea of not guilty and made his defense on arguments that he is insane.

Harold S. Hulbert, one of the alienists who testified that Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb were "mentally ill" when they "killed" Bobby Franks, is the chief medical expert retained by Lincoln's attorneys.

Soon after Mrs. Lincoln and her brother disappeared, Lincoln himself vanished, leaving behind a trail of blood and other evidence, indicating he had been murdered. When he was found several months later in Chicago, he told a story of being kidnapped by his wife and Shoup.

Soon after this he was taken into custody and held for the murders and later admitted both crimes.

Lincoln gave several reasons for his crime, the chief being that his brother-in-law interfered when he remonstrated his wife for alleged misconduct and that he killed them both in self-defense.

Cold Weather Brings Sunday School Boost

That Sunday school attendance are increasing with the advent of cooler weather was indicated in the increased attendance at various Port Arthur Sunday schools yesterday.

At the First Christian church an attendance of 427 was reported, with the Men's class reporting 153 present at the class session at the Strand theater. Yesterday's report showed an increase of 25 over last Sunday. Not only was yesterday a banner day in the attendance at Sunday school but all services were largely attended. The Christian Endeavor society's session was attended by an unusually large number of young people, a special attendance campaign having been waged for this meeting. At both the morning service and the evening service large audiences heard Rev. R. R. Zelderman's sermons.

Fair Committee to Inspect Fair Grounds

Trip to the fair grounds will be made by some 50 fair committee chairmen and members Tuesday morning, along with fair executives, when inspection will be made of the new buildings and each unit to see how much space is allowed it.

President Gene Gifford stated today this would be a final meeting of committees and all details had been attended to except the actual assignment of floor space. Merchants with exhibit spaces are also invited to be at the meeting and inspect the spaces assigned.

The meeting will begin at 10 a. m. Contract for the addition of 30 feet to the length of the women's building was allowed this morning. This makes the second addition necessary to this one building, exhibits coming in for the 11 different women's units so heavy making the enlargements a necessity.

GLORIA FAURE

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 6.—Gloria Faure, whose grandfather was a president of France, had two alternatives.

She could leave Mexico or face a firing squad.

And quite naturally, she left Mexico.

The pretty, dark-haired, dark-eyed 20-year-old senorita was classed as a dangerous radical. There was a price upon her head.

She had gone through the De la Huerta revolution against the Obregon government, as secretary to Jorge Prieto Laurens, one of De la Huerta's chief lieutenants.

It was a dangerous post for a girl. But Gloria never balked. She had cast her lot with the insurgents while visiting friends in Vera Cruz.

With Laurens, she went to Tuxpan, to Puerto Mexico, to Frontera, to La Laguna del Carmen, to Campeche, to Progreso.

When the rebel leaders at last were forced to flee for their lives, she went with them. With a little party of refugees, she arrived in New Orleans last April.

In June she decided to return to her home in Mexico City.

But there she found she was a marked woman. Government agents shadowed her. Friends gave her to understand she had better leave Mexico. She came to Houston. Here she met her old chief, Laurens—not so old in years, for he is not yet 50, but worn with the cares of a lost cause.

Meanwhile, though, wires were being cut in the Mexican capital. The government gave her brother permission to return.

Now she's going back under that amnesty proclamation.

"I've had enough excitement," she says. "I just want to go home for awhile, and then—"

"Oh, I may get married and come back to the United States."

Less Money Going Out, Postal Report Shows

Postal receipts for the quarter ended Sept. 30 shows a total of $19,965.85, which was less than the previous quarter by a small margin, Postmaster S. I. Dunn reported today.

The receipts for the quarter ended June 30, last, were $22,767.37. The same quarter for 1923 ending in September showed receipts of $23,581.76.

Postoffice officials state the slight slump can not be definitely accredited other than business was slow in all lines more or less during the summer months. The year's reports will probably show increase despite the past quarter's showing as the first six months were unusually heavy, Dunn states.

MANUFACTURERS IN TRUST SUIT

U. S. Commission Claims Restraint Practical

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The federal government today prepared to deal another blow at leading manufacturers of household utensils, charged by the federal trade commission in a report to congress with alleged violations of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws.

Following issuance of formal complaints by the commission against the manufacturers through them, initiation of a prolonged legal battle was seen here as the next step in the proceedings.

The companies named include the Aluminum company of America, controlled by the family of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, and also manufacturers of washing machines, vacuum cleaners, refrigerators and brooms.

Claims Patent Pools.

The report, which was made in response to a senate resolution asking data on trade conditions of household utensils, was not made public in its entirety by the commission, but its contents were summarized by the commission in an abstract as follows:

"The outstanding features of the report are the control exercised by patent pools among manufacturers of washing machines, the shutting out of competition in the vacuum cleaner industry, the questionable competitive tactics of the leading manufacturer of aluminum cooking utensils which is affiliated with the Aluminum Company of America; the monopolistic position of the latter company, which has apparently engaged in various practices forbidden by a judicial decree under the Sherman act; the dominating position of the Singer company in the sewing machine industry, the efforts of trade associations in the refrigerator and broom industries to enhance the prices of their products and the competitive methods of retail dealers in kitchen utensils and domestic appliances.

Many Lines Cited.

The report said the Aluminum Company of America has a "practically complete monopoly of the production of aluminum in the United States and by a high protective tariff" is able to "control the price of aluminum."

Various kinds of price discriminations were charged to the Aluminum Goods Manufacturing company, the largest manufacturer of cooking utensils in the country and affiliated with the Aluminum Company of America.

The Vacuum Cleaners Manufacturers' association was charged with putting competitors out of business by refusing them licenses under basic patents.

A patent pool said to have been entered into by 25 manufacturers of washing machines was cited as a controlling factor in that industry. The National Refrigerator Manufacturers' association, "whose members produce more than half the total output of refrigerators, have been engaged for several years in price fixing activities," the report said.

"This inquiry discloses," the abstract of the report continued, "that the National Broom Manufacturers' and the American Brush Manufacturers' association has endeavored in various ways to increase prices or to prevent price reductions, while the records of the Retail Hardware Dealers' association indicate they endeavor, through the manufacturer, to prevent mail order competition.

The Singer Sewing Machine company "controls between 65 and 75 per cent of the production of sewing machines in the United States," the commission estimated.

The Editorial Mind

Dr. Frank Crane's Editorials

REST A man's recreation and rest should be planned for as intelligently as his more forth-putting moments. Otherwise he will find himself swamped by his leisure time.

One should look ahead for his moment of recreation, as he knows that all his life is but movement, and all movement is but rhythmic. The strength of a man's blow which he puts out is in proportion to the length and quality of the rest that he puts behind it.

The best rest, always, is a change of occupation. Those who are of sedentary habits should plan for a rest of physical activity and those of a five physical occupation should plan more for a rest of quietude.

The subject goes deeper and there is a spiritual rest as well as a mental and physical rest. The wise man of old said: "He went away from God in order to find God."

Unless there be some low in our spiritual activities there can be no high tide. Unless there be a time when we simply lie fallow and let the waves of idleness overcome us there can be no time of full time when we put forth the last increment of strength.

The sun, in its daily journey, is the teacher of mankind. It sinks to rest once every twenty-four hours. So mankind has each day portioned out to him, one at a time. These days can only remain full as they are filled with nights of repose and duly alternated by them.

Perfect rest is a sign of strength and not of weakness. One who can sleep well is, as a usual thing, stronger than one who sleeps fitfully. All of us know that a condition of nerves which prevents us from sleeping is also a condition which prevents our full activities when awake.

The only foundation of the life of action therefore is a life that is duly interpreted by periods of rest. He therefore who knows how to rest well has learned the first lesson of efficiency.

In New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Just before the world war an ambitious Russian had taken his young daughter to Germany that her eyes, dimmed at birth, might be opened to see the beauties and wonders of a progressing world.

The operation was a success and the girl's sight was restored just as the war broke out. Father and daughter came to America, as had been originally planned, but without returning to Russia for mother and the remainder of the family.

Tumult followed. The mother and babes could not get to the United States. The father, opening a small laundry in New York, slaved and saved for the coming of his flock.

It is related to me that he lived in such frugal fashion that he suffered. Then, a few weeks ago, with all arrangements made for the reunion of his long separated family, he rented an apartment and furnished it with luxuries such as neither he nor his family ever before had known. No expense was spared to make the home a wonder mansion for his loved ones.

As time for the arrival of the lost came, the young Russian could scarce contain himself. He longed to take his wife and children to his bosom and nestle them forever—in reward for the years of loneliness.

The boat landed and his family came on the pier. His wife would have nothing to do with him. She would pay no attention, would listen to no plea.

On the journey to America, after her long years of mothering a brood, she fell in love with a younger man and has cast her lot with him.

The husband she had known only in dreams and memory for so long is heartbroken and forsaken. The lavishly furnished apartment has never been opened. Dust an inch thick has settled in it.

Last evening was spent with three generations of an interesting family. The grandfather, 81, plays the piano with nimble fingers; his daughter has hooped hair, and her son is an aviator.

All three smoke cigarettes. All spend much time in the open. They live on Long Island in a quaint home with a spacious sunken garden surrounding it, just 22 minutes from Broadway.

Their home life is as domestic as in any of our smaller communities. Radio, reading and early to bed. Yet they are sophisticated as those whose rooms overlook Times Square.

—STEPHEN HANNAGAN.

MOSQUITO SITUATION IN WAXAHACHIE BAD

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Oct. 6.—The mosquito situation in Waxahachie is becoming critical, according to a resident of the suburbs.

Even cats have been tempted to stray from their regular habits of subsisting on mice and rats and have been observed chasing mosquitoes. One citizen declared the family housecat slapped a mosquito down and made a meal of the carnivorous insect. At any rate, many residents are looking forward hopefully for cold weather.

$325,000 LOSS WHEN COTTON DESTROYED

TEXARKANA, Texas, Oct. 6.—Loss estimated at $325,000 was caused here early Sunday when fire destroyed the Texarkana compress and 3000 bales of cotton. The cotton was valued at $300,000. Three thousand bales of cotton in another section on the compress grounds were saved by firemen.

UNCLE SAM AGAIN ATTEMPTS TO POPULARIZE SILVER DOLLAR

If a bank told you that you could walk into its vaults and have all the gold you could carry away in one trip, how much would you get? Off-hand estimates are certain to be exaggerated, even though many would kill themselves with the strain of trying to lift too much.

One hundred pounds of gold is worth only about $30,000. A gold robbery always appeals to the imagination of a fiction reader. And yet gold is so heavy that no man could steal a fortune unless he used horses or a motor-truck.

There aren't many people who could carry $30,000 in gold a city block without sitting down to rest pantingly. The old saying, "worth his weight in gold," doesn't mean as much as popularly believed.

Silver is even worse. Fifty dollars in silver coin is like lugging around a stove.

That's why the silver dollar is not popular.

Uncle Sam is trying to make the silver dollar popular again. His reason is that the upkeep of paper money representing silver costs about 3 per cent a year of its face value. Silver certificates wear out quickly and new ones have to be printed in their place, after repeated launderings. This is expensive. To try to get people to carry silver dollars again is futile. The public simply will not do it. Furthermore, such an attempt is primitive and a reflection on public intelligence.

People long ago insisted on having the actual precious metal. Education and confidence in the national government's integrity have shattered ancient fears. We accept the silver certificate form of paper money quite as trustingly as we'd take the real silver—possibly more so.

If the upkeep of paper money is too heavy a drain on taxes, why not use tokens?

By tokens we mean discs of metal redeemable by the government as a value of $1, same as the silver dollar. To avoid confusion with other small coins, the dollar-tokens could be made of aluminum, provided it isn't too easily counterfeited. There'd be no mistaking the light weight.

A public that had confidence in beer checks still surrenders its hats for a bit of pasteboard proffered by the checking girl surely would take kindly to a light-weight metal token representing the silver dollar.

The steel industry, steadily recovering from the slump, is building up a big backlog of railroad equipment orders. A huge amount of rail business is in the market seeking bids. Steel makers figure their next big buying movement or boom will have railroad materials as its foundation.

What can be expected in this line is shown by railroad purchases—over 600 million dollars in 1923, when their buying was only average.

GERMANY AND WAR

The father of poison gas visits America. He is Professor Fritz Haber of Berlin. During the war he was Germany's head war chemist. He says: "Every other country now knows more about poison gas than Germany."

This sounds good—like a man digging a pit for his neighbor and falling into it himself.

But in Japan, the professor's next step, they will smile and wonder what's going on in secret in German laboratories. She probably could spring a few death-dealing surprises right now.

EXECUTED

Eight states have abolished the death penalty. Eight retain it as an "only penalty." Thirty-two put it up to the judge or jury—the choice of death or imprisonment.

Whether individuals like it or not, the drift unquestionably is toward doing away with capital punishment all over the country. The death penalty is the most outstanding survival of barbarism. It has been the natural answer to another form of barbarism—murder.

DEAD

Nearly a million American youths are studying Latin and other "dead languages." This is learned through a survey by the American Classical League.

For practical purposes, they might better be studying Chinese and South American (Spanish and Portuguese), these being our big foreign trade customers of the future.

Dead languages are the last strongholds of the medieval in modern education.

Quillen's Paragraphs

In a small town the neighbors' conscience doth make cowards of us all. Perhaps those lines on Mars that are obliterated at times are party lines.

It won't be hard for a woman to handle a mere state. Now if she has earned the right to be called "Ma."

Republics are not ungrateful. The memory of Walter Johnson will be treasured for endless years.

There isn't much political frenzy in evidence, but what can you expect of people who are cold sober?

The true philosopher isn't prejudiced against any sect except the insect.

As to the "intelligent minority," if it is intelligent it doesn't remain a minority.

If all men were equal, there would be no need of laws to cramp the style of the able.

PUNISHMENTS By Wallace M. Bayliss In Childhood Mother used a strap. Ma took us firmly on her lap. She said we need that kind of oil To see that we shall never spoil.

In Youth our girl gave us a slap And laid it on with stinging snap; According to the rules of Hoyle, That is the way she's taught to foil.

In Middle Age dear wife nagged Until our very spirit sagged. When'er we failed to use our brains: We got darned sick of her refrains.

In Old Age we're as good as gagged. Lest tongues of gossip should be wagged. As long as life in us remains. A woman always give us pains.

Many a store is judged by its advertising. Customers are kept away or attracted by the appeal made in newspapers.

FIRE TONGUE

By SAX ROHMER Copyright, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sir Charles Abingdon engages Paul Harley, criminal investigator, to find out why Sir Charles is shadowed. Harley dines at the Abingdon home. Sir Charles falls from his chair in a dying state. That words he utters are "Nicot Brinn" and "Fire-Tongue." Dr. McDermoch pronounces death due to heart-failure. Harley insists that Sir Charles was poisoned.

Paul asks Nicot Brinn to explain the meaning of "Fire-Tongue." Brinn refuses to enlighten him. Harley questions Polly Jones, parlormaid. Nicot Brinn is summoned to the home of the head of the Fire Tongue cult. Brinn loves Naida, a member of the cult.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

He pointed with a pen which he was holding in the direction of a heavily carved chair which stood near the table. Nicot Brinn sat down, regarding the speaker with lackluster eyes.

A query has arisen respecting your fraternal rights," continued the Hindu. "Am I to understand that you claim to belong to the Seventh Kama?"

"Certainly," replied Brinn in a toneless voice. The Hindu drew his cuff back from a slender yellow wrist, revealing a curious mark which appeared to be branded upon the flesh. It was in the form of a torch or flambeau surmounted by a tongue of flame. He raised his black brows, significantly.

Nicot Brinn stood up, removing his tight dinner jacket. Then, rolling back his sleeve from a lean, sinuous forearm, he extended the powerful member, having his fist tightly clenched.

Upon the inside of his arm, just above the elbow, an identical mark had been branded.

The Hindu stood up and saluted Nicot Brinn in a peculiar manner. That is to say, he touched the second finger of his right hand with the tip of his tongue, and then laid the finger upon his forehead, at the same time bowing deeply.

Nicot Brinn repeated the salutation, and quietly put his coat on. "We greet you," said the Hindu. "I am Rama Dass of the Bengal Lodge. Have you Hindustani?"

"No." "Where were you initiated?" "At Moon Ali Lane."

"Ah!" exclaimed the Hindu. "I see it all. In Bombay?" "When, and by whom, may I ask?"

"By Ruhmani, November 23, 1913." "Strange," murmured Rama Dass. "Brother Ruhmani died in that year; which accounts for our having lost touch with you. What is your grade?"

"The fifth." "You have not proceeded far, brother. How do you come to be unacquainted with our presence in England?"

"I cannot say." "What work has been allotted to you?" "None."

"Never?" "Never." "More and more strange," murmured the Hindu, watching Nicot through the gold-rimmed spectacles which he wore. "I have only known one other case. Such cases are dangerous, brother."

"No blame attaches to me," replied Nicot Brinn. "I have not said so," returned Rama Dass. "But in the Seventh Kama all brothers must work. A thousand lives are as nothing so the Fire lives. We had thought our information perfect, but only by accident did we learn of your existence."

"Indeed," murmured Nicot Brinn, coldly. "A document was found, and in this it was recorded that you bore upon your arm the sign of the Seventh Kama."

"This Fire that moves the grains of dust," murmured Nicot Brinn, tonelessly, "which one day make a mountain for the gods."

Rama Dass stood up at once and repeated his strange gesture of salutation, which Nicot Brinn returned ceremoniously; and resumed his seat at the table.

"You are advanced beyond your grade, brother," he said. "You are worthy the next step. Do you wish to take it?"

"Every little drop swells the ocean," returned Nicot Brinn. "You speak well," the Hindu said. "We have here your complete record. It shall not be consulted. To do so were unnecessary. We are satisfied. We regret only that one so happily circumstanced to promote the coming of the Fire should have been lost sight of. Last night there were three promotions and several rejections. You were expected."

"But I was not summoned." "No," murmured Rama Dass. "We had learned of you as I have said. However, great honor results. You will be received alone. Do you desire to advance?"

"No. Give me time." Rama Dass again performed the strange salutation, and again Nicot Brinn returned it.

"Wisdom is a potent wine," said the latter, gravely. "We respect your decision."

The Hindu rang a little silver bell upon his table, and the double doors which occupied one end of the small room opened silently, revealing a large shadowy apartment beyond.

Rama Dass stood up, crossed the room, and standing just outside the open doors, beckoned to Nicot Brinn to advance.

"There is no fear," he said, in a queer, chanting tone. "There is no fear," repeated Nicot Brinn.

"There is no love." "There is no love." "There is no death." "There is no death." "Fire alone is eternal."

"Fire alone is eternal." As he pronounced those words Nicot Brinn crossed the threshold of the dark room, and the double doors closed silently behind him.

CHAPTER XXII 'Fire-Tongue' Speaks

Absolute darkness surrounded Nicot Brinn. Darkness, unpeopled heat, and a stifling odor of hyacinths. He had been well coached, and thus far his memory had served him admirably. But now he knew not what to expect. Therefore, inwardly, on fire but outwardly composed, muscles taut and nerves strung highly, he waited the next development.

It took the form, first, of the tinkling of a silver bell, and then of the coming of a dim light at the end of what was evidently a long apartment. The light grew brighter, assuming the form of a bluish flame burning in a little flambeau. Nicot Brinn watched it fascinatedly.

Absolutely no sound was discernible, until a voice began to speak, a musical voice of curiously arresting quality.

"You are welcome," said the voice. "You are of the Bombay Lodge, although a citizen of the United States. Because of some strange error, no work has been allotted to you hitherto. This shall be remedied."

The introduction of Maskelyne illusions into an English country house must ordinarily have touched his sense of humor, but knowing something of the invisible presence in which he stood in that darkened chamber, there was no laughter in the least of Nicot Brinn, but rather an unfamiliar coldness, the nearest approach to fear of which this steel-nerved man was capable.

"Temporarily," the sweet voice continued, "you will be affiliated with the London Lodge, to whom you will look for instructions. These will reach you almost immediately. There is great work to be done in England. It has been decided, however, that you shall be transferred as quickly as possible in our New York Lodge. You will await orders. Only Fire is eternal."

Again the voice ceased. But, Nicot Brinn remaining silent: "Your reply is awaited."

"Fire is life," replied Nicot Brinn. The blue tongue of flame subsided, lower and lower, and finally disappeared, so that the apartment became enwrapped in absolute darkness. A faint resulting sound suggested that a heavy curtain had been lowered, and almost immediately the doors behind Nicot Brinn were opened again by Rama Dass.

"We congratulate you, brother," he said, extending his hand. "Yet the ordeal was no light one, for all the force of the Fire was focused upon you."

Nicot Brinn re-entered the room where the shaded lamp stood upon the writing table.

If the speaker with the strangely arresting voice were indeed that Fire-Tongue whose name was synonymous with dread in certain parts of the East, then Fire-Tongue was an impostor. He who claimed to reduce the thoughts of all men to a single thought in the present instance, unless—

Nicot Brinn stared dully into the smiling face of Rama Dass. Not yet must he congratulate himself. Perhaps the Hindu's smile concealed as much as the mask worn by Nicot Brinn.

"We congratulate you," said Rama Dass. "You are a worthy brother."

He performed the secret salutation, which Nicot Brinn automatically acknowledged. Then, without another word, Rama Dass led the way to the door.

Out into the dark hallway Nicot Brinn stepped, his muscles taut, his brain alert for instant action. But no one offered to molest him.

A minute later he was seated again in the shuttered limousine, and as it moved off, and the lights leapt up above him, he lay back upon the cushions and uttered a long sigh.

Drawing out a silk handkerchief from the breast pocket of his dinner jacket, he wiped his face and forehead deliberately. Then, selecting a long black cigar from a case which bore the monogram of the late Czar of Russia, he lighted it, dropped the match in the tray, and looking back in a corner, closed his eyes wearily.

Thus, almost unmoving, he remained throughout the drive. His only actions were, first, to assure himself that both doors were locked again, and then at intervals tidily to place a little cone of ash in the tray provided for the purpose. Finally, the car drew up and a door was unlocked by the chauffeur.

Frocks of Tunic Types Prove Popular Because Of Extreme Youthfulness

"TUNING in with the tunic" is the latest fashion broadcast that has taken the feminine world by storm. Styles have been running to straight and slender lines for several years and the introduction of the tunic frock continues the slender-lined idea and at the same time offers a newness and youthfulness which was necessary to bring about a silhouette change.

There is something extremely youthful in the tunic frock. One appears to be wearing a child's dress with a longer underslip beneath it. So many of the fall blouses are made on tunic lines that one can't distinguish the tunic frock from the blouse and skirt combinations, as in each case the blouse portion is of contrasting color from the underslip which extends from four to eight inches beneath it. At present women are wearing brilliantly colored silk tunics over black satin slips as the early fall street dress. Bright red, henna, russet brown, green and other lovely shades are frequently worn over black foundations.

The majority of tunics are beltless and while most of them follow straight slender lines, there are a few which terminate with circular flare at the hem. In all cases the underslip is extremely scant and moderately short. While silk crepe in bright colors worn over dark slips form most of the simple tunics, we see gorgeous brocades combining gold and brilliant shades posed over heavy silk crepe foundations. These are beautiful enough to be worn at the most formal function. Often the hem of these more ornate-materialized tunics is bordered with a six inch band of some soft fur.

Frocks of tunic types seem to be prettiest when made with either a long tightfitting sleeve or a mere shoulder cap or elongated shoulder as intermediate sleeve lengths appear unsuited to tunic lines.

Evening frocks are seldom made on tunic lines, and if so made, there is no contrast between the color of the underslip and the tunic bodice.

The tunic dress offers wonderful possibilities to the home dressmaker who delights in making over frocks of past season. First because length is not a thing to be considered. A tunic may be any length whatsoever. Some of them extend between hip-line and the knees while others reach within an inch of the underslip.

Sometimes lovely pieces of material can be purchased at remnant counters in two yard and a half lengths at a great reduction in price. These short lengths can be made into beautiful tunic frocks by adding underslips of contrasting material and color. The underslip may be of some inexpensive material where a band of better material can be added.

There is no age limit to the tunic dress and there is no size limit, as the straight, unbelted lines of the tunic seem to be becoming to almost everyone. If one is extremely short, however, one should beware of a dress which divides its color scheme by using a slip of contrasting shade to the tunic. To attain the effect of the height of the body portion of the frock should keep to one color, letting sleeves or trimming add the desired contrast.

Many of the younger girls are making the mistake of trying to adapt the short waisted vogue to the tunic mode, by tying a tight string belt about the normal waist-line of the tunic. This is not only ugly, but is entirely out of line with the tunic idea. If one must wear a belt with the tunic, place it at a low waistline. Brown is one of the most favored of fall colors and runs the gamut of

The smartest of hats are extremely simple as to line and are very scantily trimmed. There is a tendency toward the modified high crown trimmings in self material. Felts remain popular with blacks and browns leading.

Colorful scarfs are diminishing in numbers. Few smartly gowned women are wearing them except for actual sports wear.

Brown and black suede shoes are among the fall collection and suede will undoubtedly be a fall fashion leader. Shoes with one strap over the instep or plain pumps are preferable this season to more elaborate sandal models. Black patent pumps are selling well in New York.

GLEANNERS' CLASS

POSTPONE PARTY

The "surprise" planned for Thursday evening by the Gleanners class of the First Christian church at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Henry P. Foote, 1828 Ninth street, has been postponed until next week.

The postponement was made because of conflicting events, a district council meeting of the Christian Endeavor society and a housewarming at the First Christian church, both being scheduled for the same evening.

The nature of the "surprise" was being guarded by those in the know and arrangements were being made to make the occasion a most delightful one. Further announcement of the "surprise" will be made next Sunday morning at the class session at the First Christian church at 9:30 o'clock.

If you fail to vote this year you may be a target for backyard gossip. "Get Out the Vote" is a slogan for personal application.

LETTER FROM RUTH BURKE TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CONTINUED

Of course, Leslie, you know that Julia Asted wants to have an interest in the shop. She has made a wonderful manager, and sometimes I think it is due as much to her as to me that it has been successful. Notwithstanding, you seem to think I am absolutely necessary to its prosperity. What would you think of giving her a small interest in it? That would leave us comparatively independent of it.

Write and tell me what you think of the plan.

I don't imagine you will be home very soon, if your love has not made you too fearful of your father's condition, and he is not better than you think.

My heart goes out to you and to your mother. The sufferings of those we love are perhaps the hardest things we have to bear in this world. We can suffer our own pains, our own misfortunes, our own mental hurts, because most of us have hearts that are stout enough to bear the ills that come to us; but always we seem to feel that when we see the sufferings of those who are very dear to us, that we must give them some impossible relief.

However, my dear Leslie, you have one great solace. Your father, my dear, is a great and good man. Whatever comes, that satisfaction cannot be taken from you. It is the greatest heritage he can leave to you.

This is a very long letter, my dear, and there is still much I would like to say. But after all, when one wishes really to comfort a friend, one must talk face to face. So I will just add the words

Until soon, RUTH.

Letter From John Alden Prescott to Sydney Carton

It's a long, time, dear old chap, since I have written you, and so much has happened that it seems even longer, especially as you have not answered my last letter.

I had fully made up my mind not to go to Leslie until she had asked me to or in some other way signified her want of me. But the fates seemed to conspire against me. You saw from Mother Hamilton's letter that I would have appeared a churl had I not come over here. Beside, I don't mind telling you, I never was as lonely and unhappy in my life. That damned old maid, Priscilla Bradford, has stayed on with Mother, and there is something about her that when she is with the mater, she puts the devil into her. I don't see how Leslie can put up with her. I know that I wouldn't. In fact, I think her being at the house was one reason why I determined to eat humble pie and go over to Leslie. Of two evils, I determined to choose the lesser.

Of course, I didn't tell her I was coming, and strange as it may seem, I had some kind of feeling I should find her sitting upstairs in a room alone, grieving—a kind of modern Marianna in the moated grange, as it were. But instead, she had gone to a party.

Of course, her mother sent the car right after her, and she came in, looking more beautiful than I had ever seen her in my life, and those damned pearls about her neck! I would have snatched them from her throat, and I think I would have done so if Mother and Nora and little John had not been there. As it was, I had to give her at least a husbandly peck.

She didn't even offer her lips to me, and I think mine were stopped somewhere about the edge of her hair, near her ear. I don't know what would have happened, for everything was decidedly strained, if that blessed baby had not caught sight of Leslie and almost buried himself out of Nora's arms.

RESULTS WERE LASTING SAYS JOSEPH P. HARDIN

Tanlac Restored Corsicana Man to Health Seven Years Ago.

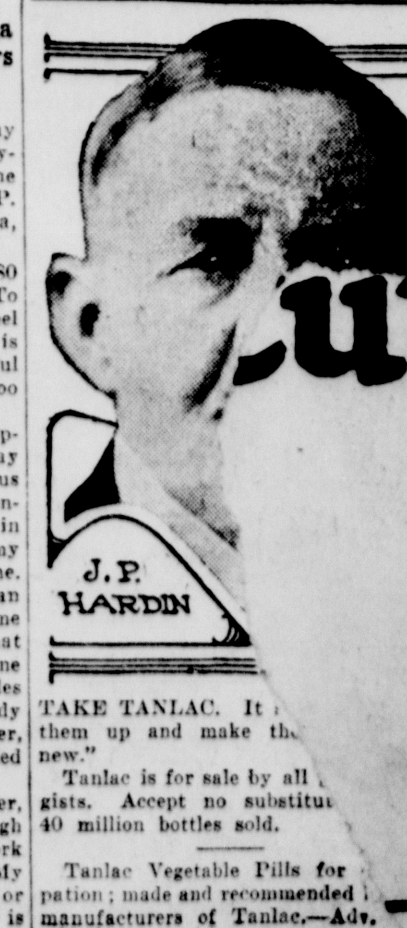

"About the best thing I could say for Tanlac is that I am still enjoying the good health it brought me six or seven years ago," said Jos. P. Hardin, 210 W. 4th Ave., Corsicana, Texas.

I am now 73 years old, weigh 150 lbs., and enjoy perfect health. To have no physical ailments and feel so strong and well at that age is certainly something to be thankful for, and I just can't praise Tanlac too highly.

Before I got on to Tanlac my appetite had left me. I was away down in weight, extremely nervous and had very little strength or energy. As I was getting along in years, I didn't know but what my ailments indicated a general decline.

"But in a few days after I began taking Tanlac I started to come right back and then I knew that all I needed was the right medicine for my case. Five or six bottles of Tanlac fixed me up with a dandy appetite, set my nerves in order, brought back my strength and added 10 lbs. to my weight."

Tanlac just about made me over, you might say, and I feel good enough now to go out and do the old work of farming and saw milling again. My advice to anyone who can't eat or sleep right and feels run-down, is

TAKE TANLAC. It's them up and make the new.

Tanlac is for sale by all druggists. Accept no substitutes. 40 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation; made and recommended by manufacturers of Tanlac.—Adv.

92 ADDITIONS BY EVANGELIST

Baptist Revival to Close Wednesday Night

Additions to the First Baptist church during the revival services which Dr. I. E. Lee of Herrin, Ill., is conducting here, totaled 92 with the 18 who joined the church Sunday, Rev. Dr. C. W. Culp, pastor, said today.

Tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the church Dr. Lee will speak on the subject, "Who is God?" The evangelist spoke Sunday before the combined Fidelis and Berean classes, at the Cameo theater at 9:30 a. m., at the morning and evening preaching services in the church, and gave two addresses during the afternoon on the troubles at Herrin, Ill., recently.

Dr. Lee plans to leave Wednesday morning for his home, but the revival will not close until after the Wednesday evening service, Rev. Culp said today. Baptismal services will follow the preaching service to night and Wednesday night.

Sees Trans-Atlantic Airship Service Soon

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Regular trans-Atlantic airship service between England and America is expected within a few years by Sir Sefton Brancker, chief of the Air Ministry. He estimates two and a half days as the regular scheduled time of the trip across the Atlantic. Airships will be the pioneers in establishing this service, but eventually airplanes may become practicable for such flights, he said.

Sir Sefton also thinks bi-weekly airship service between England and India and Australia, eleven days for the trip, and weekly service to Cape Town in five and a half days, will be established before many years.

"Two and a half to three years will pass before the first two big ships are flying," he said, "and after that it may be another two years before the airship service to India in a regular, steady bi-weekly basis can be established."

The British air ministry is now working to produce aircraft that can be operated more cheaply. Experiments are now being made with a heavy-oil engine, which, if successful, will do to airplanes what the Ford did to automobiles—make an airplane within the financial reach of almost everybody.

Spain in Throes of New Civil Overthrow

THE PRINCE OF ASTURIAS
BY MILTON BRONNER
News Staff Writer.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Spain, harassed abroad by a losing war which is sapping its finances and undermining its man power, and troubled at home by a multitude of discontents, is about to undergo another political earthquake.

The upheaval is certain to bring about the downfall of Dictator Rivera. It would even menace the monarchy itself were it not that the army still is strongly royalist.

Already there are rumors that Rivera and his cabal of generals, who seized power a year ago, are about to step down and turn over the reins to a makeshift coalition of all parties.

It is headed by General Weyler that remarkable old man who was the target of Americans' hates in our war with Spain.

Seeks to Save Monarchy.
Today, at 86, Weyler, is chief of staff of the army. He is seemingly as vigorous as ever, perhaps due principally to the fact that he neither drinks nor smokes. Unlike most Spaniards of high degree, he leads the simple life.

If Rivera does hand over the keys of office to Weyler, it will be to preserve the monarchy and also to safeguard the grip the army has upon the country's life.

In any event Rivera realizes his race is run.

With the army juntas at his back, he seized the power a year ago and made King Alfonso mere figurehead. The country, disgusted with the corruption that had been rife and with the utter failure to accomplish anything in the Spanish zone in Morocco, looked to Rivera for relief.

He has failed utterly.

The situation in Morocco is worse than ever. In the eastern end of their zone the Spaniards are practically confined to the town of Melilla. In the west, the Rifian tribesmen have beaten the Spaniards to a standstill. The army is visualizing a condition of affairs in which it will only hold the towns near the sea.

Meantime, the victorious Rifian warriors are demanding Spanish acknowledgment of their independence and indemnity for the war Spain forced upon them. Rivera himself has been in Morocco recently, but accomplished nothing but the issuance of a few bombastic proclamations to the Spanish army and people.

Loses Peasants' Respect.
Rivera has accomplished little in the way of bringing about a healthier governmental budget. He promised to cut down expenses and increase revenues. He made a beginning by dropping some useless officials, but the war in Morocco has made expenses go up instead of down.

He has lost his hold on the peasantry. Owners of little farms have seen their sons carted off to the army and shipped over to Morocco to fight in a year they don't understand. Many lie buried in Moroccan hills. More than 100,000 young soldiers are now there on the fighting front.

The dictator lost all sympathy in the intellect 1 classes, thanks to a rigid and stupid censorship of the press, to a suppression of free speech, and to governmental espionage on private letters.

Miguel Unamuno, professor of Greek at the University of Salamanca and the greatest living Spanish writer and philosopher, without trial and without warning, was banished from Spain possibly because he criticized Rivera as a "routier" of intelligence below the average, and decorated with vain ambitions. The dictator sent him to a barren island in the Canaries.

Henri Dumay, director of a great French newspaper, succeeded in rescuing Unamuno and bringing him to France. Thereupon Rivera announced Unamuno had been pardoned by the government.

Ossorio Gallardo, lawyer and political leader, was arrested only the other day because in a private letter to another Spanish statesman he referred to the bad conditions in the country and to a reported mutiny among Spanish troops.

Catalanians Angry, Too.
Rivera has inflamed Catalonia, the most vigorous, most independent and most prosperous section of Spain.

Barcelona, the great metropolis of this district, was delighted when Rivera put an end to the terror inspired by the syndicalists who had permeated the labor unions of the city and who resorted to the bomb and the pistol in disputes with employers.

Soon the Catalans saw all their hard-won local institutions either suppressed or mismanaged. In 1914 Barcelona established a "Mancomunitat," elected from the Catalan provinces for the purposes of internal government.

It instituted the finest system of schools in the country, including an industrial university modeled on American lines, and a great public library. Its department of agriculture organized lectures and classes all through Catalonia at which the peasants were taught up-to-date farming methods. It gave Catalonia the only complete telephone service in Spain.

One of Rivera's first acts was to dissolve this energetic "Mancomunitat." In place of members elected by the people, he nominated friends of his own. The whole progressive enlightened machine has been paralyzed.

Grain Thieves Operate On Farms in Kansas

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 2.—This year—a year of bumper crops in Kansas, prosperity and general good tidings—farmers are faced with a comparatively new problem.

The horse thief has changed his spots and now goes out with a truck and a scow shovel and steals grain. Farmers in some sections of the state are mounting guard nightly over their granaries and grain piled out under the open sky. Several wheat thieves have been caught.

Although operating under the old "anti-horse thief association" that existed years ago they have re-organized and are crusading against the grain thieves.

COLLEGE PAPER JAILED EDITOR

Warrant Charges Distribution of 'Obscene' Matter

PLINT, Mich., Oct. 6.—"Probably some article in the malestrom got the lot of some member of the Albion faculty and he is suing me for libel."

In this manner Lawrence Smale, freshman ex-publisher of the Malestrom, which shocked Albion when it appeared on the campus last week, expressed himself in the county jail today. He was arrested last Sunday on a warrant charging him with selling and distributing obscene literature.

"I derived the idea of the Malestrom from a similar publication issued at Ann Arbor called 'Tid Bits.' The only trouble was that at Albion they are too religiously narrow-minded to admit a magazine of this nature," the youthful editor said.

Jazz Taboo This Winter

$325,000
The more stately and the more yesteryear are to be looked at, the more naturalness, grace—all of which, according to American dancing instructors, is in varying degree in our time, clutching fox trot, strangle holds and freak manner of gripping hands are taboo and there will be no happy medium, declare the dancing authorities, the American Society of Teachers of Dancing.

When you dance this winter you will be either all right or all wrong and there are no two ways about it. The jazzier steps are going out, say the dancing masters, and in their stead we shall see a return of the gliding movements that distinguished the waltz, two-step and some of the more graceful if less lively dances.

Chandler Peak, dancing instructor, and his partner, Edwina Martine Weckler, illustrate the poses stamped incorrect and correct by the authorities on ballroom calisthenics.

Series Opens in New York Today for 3 Games

BLASE GOTHAM NOT BOTHERED

Full House of 55,000 At Polo Grounds

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—After breaking even in the two openers at Washington, the New York Giants and the Washington Senators jumped into New York today to play three more games of the world's series.

Both teams insist they will be the last games of the series, but New York doesn't care much either way as the sixth game, if necessary, is scheduled for the American league city.

The players found when they arrived that New York was all worked up to the point where the strap hangers remarked casually: "Well, there's another game at the Polo Grounds this afternoon."

New York Not Excited
After the excitement and the verbal turmoil in Washington where the bugs were all pepped up over their first chance to see the Senators in a world's series, New York seemed dull and uninterested. New York has no great civic interest in the Giants and even those with a personal attachment to McGraw's team have seen in three other recent series and are not novelty.

Word was passed from the Giants' office a capacity crowd of 55,000 was expected and it is reasonable to assume there will be few empty seats. The demand for tickets has been as heavy as it was in the last three years but it has not approached the rush that made a paradise for the speculators in Washington.

New York didn't turn out any mob to greet or cheer the players. It was too early.

Hazy skies hung over the city this morning and there was a feel of rain in the air. The sun was trying to get through, however, and there was a promise of a clear afternoon.

Marberry Saves Day
Buck Harris, the young Washington manager, said before leaving Washington that he probably would pitch Fred Marberry, a huge young right hander in the third game. Marberry made a record yesterday by winning a world's series game on three pitched balls.

With two down in the ninth inning and with the winning run on second base Tom Zachary was taken out of the box and Marberry was called upon to do what he has been doing all season — save the game. Marberry threw three fast one right past Travis Jackson, a dangerous hitter in a pinch, and the Giants were licked.

McGraw fell back on his usual "ten minutes before game time" when he was asked about his pitcher. McQuillan and Barnes are ready but McQuillan probably will get the call.

Betting was still at even money on the series with opinion divided on the winner. The Senators are back now where they started and if they can get by today they may be able to use Walter Johnson in two more games.

Senators Fighting Now
Instead of having a depressing effect upon the team, the defeat of Johnson and the loss of the opening game seemed to arouse the Senators and they played yesterday with winning spirit. Brilliant work behind Zachary saved him in the first inning when he filled the bases with one out, and his support got the side out on a beautiful double play.

Home runs have been the deciding blow in both games, although Roger Peckinpaugh, the Washington shortstop, officially won yesterday's game in the ninth inning with a double. With the boys in a slugging mood against fairly good pitching, it is possible that there will be more in the next three games with the short left and right field stands for targets at the Polo Grounds.

The excitement of two close finishes and the squaring of the series seems to have killed all talk of the scandal which had Washington in a frenzy for three days. Commissioner Landis came to New York with the official party last night but he had nothing to say.

Sisler's Eye Trouble Changes His Batting

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—Although George Sisler in his comeback after a year's absence from the game was very successful, still he dropped over 100 points in batting from his 1922 average.

Despite the fact that he wasn't nearly so dangerous at the bat, American league pitchers were forced to pitch entirely different than in former years.

Sisler made his reputation as a batsman as a low ball hitter. He could murder them from knee to waistline. Above that he was not so hard to fool.

Sisler's eye affliction has changed his batting style entirely. Perhaps it is due to the fact that his eyes do not focus as well on a low ball that he has become a high ball hitter.

Three Balls Pitched At Full Speed Won For Fred Marberry

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Fred Marberry, a huge rookie right hander, made a new record yesterday when he won a world's series game with three pitched balls.

"Guess I needed only three. I just laid them down the alley with a lot of speed on 'em and they hit the right spot. I felt good when I warmed up and was sure I wouldn't miss the backstop so I let out with everything I had," he said.

STRONG OUTFIT SEEMS CERTAIN

Practice Tomorrow At Five O'Clock

Port Arthur's one-time redoubtable Pirates may furnish the football attraction for the fair next week. This was announced this morning by Albert Plettman, who is sponsoring the reorganization of the team.

First practice will be held on Franklin field tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock and the prospects of the Pirates playing next week depend entirely on the number of men turning out for practice Tuesday. Plettman has been assured by every member of the old Pirates team that they were anxious to compete again, and if they turn out for practice the fair game is assured. All other football players, whether they played with the Pirates or not, are asked to come.

The high school authorities have allowed the Pirates the use of Franklin field for practice, and have also promised use of the Yellowjacket uniforms for the game, provided the high school has no conflicting game, Plettman says.

No Date Set Yet.
Every member of the old Pirates team is in Port Arthur with the exception of four players, and all of them are expected to be on the team again. Among them are Penn Sanderfur, Albert Plettman, Dee Carter, Earl LeBlanc, Spiegel and others.

No date has been set for the game, except that it will be played during the fair, October 14 to 18. Probably October 18, Saturday, will be chosen, unless the Yellowjackets schedule a game for that date. South Park college of Beaumont will be asked for a game, and if Johnson's SPark boys decline the honors, efforts will be made to bring the freshmen team from Rice, Texas or A. & M.

It is not known today whether the pier would afford sufficient open ground for a gridiron, but if not, the game will probably be taken to Franklin field.

Peckinpaugh Given Auto Saturday and Now Fans Owe Him Two and Ford

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—The world series is back where it looks natural.

Ghosts of the goats that once roamed Coogan's Bluff were reincarnated into clambering, butting, headlong, heedless fans today, struggling for a place in the bleachers—just as it all has happened for these many years.

The enthusiasm on the part of the Washington fans, the whistles, yells, cheers, maledictions, handbaking and fist shaking, was the grandest part of those first two games.

It was like being at a college football game with the dome team six points behind and the ball on the visitors' ten-yard line.

When "Goose" Goslin, lanky Senator outfielder, lifted a fly into some temporary stands in rightfield for a technical home run Sunday, three Washington fans fell off the bleachers into the street. And fully 35,000 hearts felt farther than that when the Giants tied the score in the ninth.

Washington fans presented Roger Peckinpaugh with an automobile before the first game and by this time they owe him at least two more and a Ford.

Doubles in the ninth are Mr. Peckinpaugh's specialty. In the first game he tied the score with a ringing double and the second he won in this way.

Shortly before 6 a. m. today there were 64 fans in line at the bleachers entrance, shivering in the hazy dawn. At that hour before Saturday's game in Washington there were some 3,000 in line outside Griffith stadium and more coming every minute.

And moreover seven of the first eight men in line at the Polo Grounds were not New Yorkers.

The first man in line was J. O. Folby, a school teacher from Springfield, Ill.

Melvin Feraban and Glenn Corbin of Buffalo were second and third, and Frank Lubinar of Philadelphia fourth.

Henry Kaiser of the east side was number five, the first New Yorker in line. He was number one last year.

Connie Mack Places His Hopes in Lamar

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Connie Mack says the acquisition of Outfielder Bill Lamar has made his ball club.

Lamar came to the Athletics from the Toledo club of the American association, the exploded phenom Pau Strand and Pitcher Rollie Naylor being handed over by Mack.

Mack figured Strand, who batted over 400 in the Coast league in 1923, would make his club. Strand failed to deliver, was a rank failure at the bat. His blowup greatly handicapped the Mackmen.

Lamar after joining the Athletics supplied the very punch that was expected of Strand. The club started immediately winning and during the last two months of the American league race played as good ball as any team in the league.

"Look out for 1925," says Mack. "Had Lamar started the season with us we would have surely finished in the first division."

Shortstop Worries Cobb.

Ty Cobb has already started to worry about shortstop for 1925. Rigney didn't have a very good season this year and is complaining of a hip injury that has handicapped his major league career.

Harris' Double Play Won for Washington Peckinpaugh Claims

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Roger Peckinpaugh, Washington shortstop, is credited with a double that drove in the winning run in the ninth inning and beat the Giants in yesterday's game. He was the only hero of the day.

"I didn't win the game," he said when asked about it. "All I did was to connect with a saucer that came just where I wanted it. Harris did more to win the game than I did, when he made that great stop and started the double play that saved Zachary in the first inning with the bases filled."

Ohio State to Play Iowa Next Saturday

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Ohio State, scoring the first Big Ten victory Saturday by defeating Purdue 7 to 0, faces a chance to increase her early lead in the conference next Saturday when the Buckeyes journey to Iowa City to engage the once powerful Hawkeyes.

The Iowa-Ohio contest will be the only game Saturday between two members of the Big Ten, all the other teams playing "practice games."

'Fair and Cooler' for Today's Game Forecast

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Weather for the world's series game in New York today and tomorrow will be "fair and cooler," the weather bureau here predicted today.

Orioles Take Lead From St. Paul, 6-4

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 6.—Baltimore took the fourth game of the "little world series" from St. Paul Sunday 6 to 4. The Orioles have won two games and the Saints one and the third resulted in a tie.

What are angle plays in football?

When the player carrying the ball starts as on an end run or long slant and suddenly cuts sharply in or out, it is referred to as an angle play.

Please explain the term shift formation?

Usually after a team lines up, by a series of shifts, whereby the men change their positions, they arrive at the formation desired and get the play away before their opponents can get firmly set to meet it.

The shift play is in the nature of a surprise attack and much of its success depends on the speed with which it is executed.

Tour Not Cancelled, McGraw Tells Chisox

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Despite rumors to the contrary, Manager John J. McGraw of the New York Giants has assured Tip O'Neil, business manager of the proposed world tour of the Giants and Chicago White Sox that the trip has not been cancelled.

Track and Football Don't Mix in College

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Track and football usually do not mix in college athletics.

If some athlete is certain to be a big point winner in track, he is kept out of football.

The possibility of injury in football is too great to permit the track star to take a chance.

The "Big Ten" is to offer two exceptions this year in Brookins of Iowa and Kinsey of Illinois.

Brookins will not be eligible for track this spring at Iowa and is taking a flyer at the gridiron game.

Coaches are hoping his great hurdling ability in addition to his speed will make him a valuable man.

Kinsey, also a speed merchant, is making a bid for the Illinois varsity, with a fair chance of making the grade.

McGraw After Roush.

Having won his tenth pennant, John McGraw is casting out lines for next year. Not satisfied with his outfield, he seeks to get Ed Roush of the Reds in a trade.

U. S.-ENGLAND P. P. SERVICE

Reciprocal Postal Relations Established

Parcel post service with Great Britain and northern Ireland was established by the United States post-office department Oct. 1 and will be taken advantage of extensively in Port Arthur, in the opinion of Postmaster S. I. Dunn who says all regulations instituting the service have been put into effect.

The reciprocal parcel post service between the two countries allows postmasters to accept and insure all mailable parcel packages not to exceed 11 pounds weight or 3 feet six inches in circumference. No parcel will be insured for any amount above its value.

Special requirements are every package must be packed to make the journey safely. Liquid substances or those which liquefy easily must be put in double receptacle, the inner one to contain an absorbent of cotton, sawdust or equally effective material. All fragile articles must be so endorsed.

All insured articles exchanged with Great Britain must be closed and securely sealed. Both countries reserve the rights to break open the seals and examine the contents but these will be closed again with official seals after inspection. No insured package shall have written a description of the contents on the outside. This can be described in the accompanying customs declaration. The parcels from here are subject to the mail regulations of Great Britain and special delivery instructions on the package or mail will not be regarded there.

Postmaster Dunn, calling attention to the inauguration of the new postal service, invites the public to take advantage of it and call at the postoffice for any additional information needed, he said.

DALLAS, Oct. 6.—The surprising defeat of the Kansas Jayhawkers on their own gridiron by the Oklahoma Aggies was the outstanding event in the week end program in the South-west Conference. Although the score was only 3-0, the fact that the Aggies held the Jayhawkers scoreless while counting with a field goal, threw a dark shadow across the remainder of the season for other conference members.

Likewise, another out-of-state member of the conference the Arkansas Razorbacks, did not ease the minds of other conference teams when they took the Springfield, Mo., normal eleven into camp 47 to 0. The Razorbacks scored almost at will and displayed plenty of punch and ability to lug the ball.

Baylor university of Waco easily showed the most class among Texas conference members by defeating Denton normal 30 to 0.

Rice Institute easily took the measure of Sam Houston normal in a civic match at Houston 22 to 6; while S. M. U. was walloping Trinity university from Waco 13 to 2. Hot weather slowed the game here and was evidenced on all Texas playing fields. The locals played regulation football and held in throughout the game.

Texas Christian university at Fort Worth experienced some difficulty in using out a 14-13 victory over Daniel Baker after trailing through a large part of the game. Only a belated aerial attack saved the Horned Frogs, who took a heavy loss through injuries to Captain Lindsay Jacks, who will probably be out of the lineup the balance of the season due to a fractured leg.

The Texas Aggies had an easy time measuring Southwestern Friday 54 to 0, but their experience will be valuable when they clash with Sewanee of Tennessee during the state fair here this week.

Reed Grange To Have Fast Running Mate

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 6.—"There will be someone else on the field for them to watch this year besides Red Grange," says Coach Bob Zuppke of Illinois.

Just whom he means he won't say, but from the practice sessions thus far, several are possibilities. Ray Gallivan, sophomore quarter, has been playing a consistently strong game and it is a question as to whether he or Harry Hall, last year's pilot, will call the plays against Nebraska. He may have been in Zuppke's mind.

Zup may have meant Bennie Leonard, 187-pound back from Forrest, Ill., who was a bright light with the freshman squad last year.

Or the coach may have been thinking of Dancy, a former schoolmate of Leonard, who is a hard hitter both on offense and defense. He has stopped Reed Grange several times in scrimmages.

Light Hitting Champions.

Joe Judge, Sam Rice, Goose Goslin and Outfielder McNeely carry the punch of the Washington club. The Nationals are a light-hitting aggregation for a pennant winner.

The slower a tobacco burns, the cooler it smokes. Also the longer it lasts. This slow burning is due to the "cut". Granger is "rough cut" to smoke slow and cool—cut for pipes, not cigarettes. And Wellman's famous old secret method produces richer fragrance and taste.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Heigh ho, hi hi hum lo!" he sang

Along came Tweekanose, the Gnome who liked to keep the babies awake.

"Heigh ho, hi hi hum lo!" he sang. "I am so happy! Tum re tum le hi hum lo!"

"What are you so happy about?" asked Twelve Toes the Sorcerer, who was one of his best friends.

"I'm so happy," sang Tweekanose, "because the Sand Man has lost his sleepy sand. You've got part of it, thanks to my smartness, and Tricky Trixio has part of it, and the rest is in Squeekick Land. The Sand Man will never find it now."

"Don't be so sure about that," said Twelve Toes gloomily. "I had my share of the sleepy sand in a flower pot with a rose planted in it. But the Sand Man came with the Twins and said a charm, 'Iminy Jiminy!' just like that. The first thing I knew the sand jumped right out of my flower pot into the Sand Man's sack."

"Toadstools and fuzzy worms!" cried Tweekanose crossly. And with out another word he rushed to the mountain where Trick Trixio lived.

"Quick!" he cried to that person. "Give me all the magic sand I left for you to keep for me. I'm afraid the Sand Man and the Twins will get it."

"Too late by three hours, forty minutes and six seconds," said Tricky. "The Sand Man was here and said a charm, 'Iminy Jiminy!' just like that and away it went."

"Fleabites and mosquitoes!" cried Tweekanose still more crossly. And without another word he rushed to Squeekick Land to see what had happened there.

It was just the same. The Squeekick king told how the Sand Man and the Twins had fooled him completely and the Squeekick Lord High Counsellor told how they had fooled him completely and run off with a whole shekel of sand.

"All my trouble for nothing," said Tweekanose gloomily. "I haven't a friend I can trust. I'll have to go to Crookabone and ask his advice." Crookabone was the Gnome king who lived under the ground, and to him went Tweekanose with his troubles.

"The Sand Man and the Twins have the magic sand again," he said, "and the first thing you know all the kiddies will get to sleep tonight." Crookabone smiled a sour smile. "They're not asleep yet," said he. "I have a plan. I can stop the Sand Man and the Twins before they get a hundred steps farther."

So he called a hundred of his workers together.

"Go and get a thousand cakes of soap," he commanded, "and pave the road to Jum Jum Land before the Sand Man gets there."

Then he called a hundred more of his workers.

"Go and get a thousand watering pots and sprinkle the road to Jum Jum Land as soon as the others get through with it," he commanded.

"No, sir!" said he to Tweekanose. "If you cannot do the rest you do not deserve your name."

"Hee, hee, hee!" cried Tweekanose gleefully. "Never fear, I'll get the magic sleepy sand again as sure as the cow jumped over the moon."

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

HENRY THE EIGHTH AND HIS TIMES

Part II—May Day in Old England

For some years after he had been made king, Henry spent most of his time feasting, hunting and having a good time in general. Sometimes he took his wife with him on pleasant trips to the country. Such a trip was likely to come on May day, the first day of May.

There was a custom in those days for young women to wash their faces in dew on the morning of May day. That was supposed to make them beautiful. Indeed it did help for it lent color to their cheeks and this color was kept the rest of the day during lively games and sports.

The night before May day, bands of men were in the habit of going to the woods near London. They would cut down green boughs and shrubs and would get the May pole ready.

The May pole was a huge affair. Forty pairs of oxen were used to draw it through the streets of London. The oxen had little bouquets of flowers tied to the tips of their horns.

The pole itself was covered with blossoms and leaves. The people who watched it pass were dressed in their gayest clothes and many of them held bouquets in their arms.

The May pole was sure to be followed by a surging crowd of men, women and children. It was set up in a churchyard and was so tall it towered above the church. The people joyfully danced around it, played games and sang songs.

One day Henry the Eighth and his queen went to the country on May day. By and by they caught sight of a band of men dressed all in green. Each one carried a bow and some arrows. The leader came to the king and said:

"I am Robin Hood, the chief of this band. Would you like to see my men shoot?"

"Yea-hoh!" replied Henry. He knew that Robin Hood was dead long since but liked to see men shoot with the bow-and-arrow and here he saw a chance.

The leader whistled and 200 arrows sailed through the air.

"Will you come into our green wood?" asked the man who called himself "Robin Hood."

The king turned to Catherine, saying:

"Would you agree to go with these outlaws?"

"If you wish it, sire," she responded.

Soon they were in the forest and sat down to a feast of venison. You can imagine the fun it was for the royal couple to be in a sweet-smelling woods instead of a stuffy palace.

The "outlaws" were really soldiers of the king. They had dressed up for May day.

IN CAB 44 YEARS

NEWTON, N. J., Oct. 12.—Richard Trezise has been retired by the Lackawanna railroad under the "age rule," after 44 years of service in a locomotive cab. He is 70. Trezise drove his engine nearly 3,000,000 miles during his service and of the millions of passengers carried by him, he boasts that not one life was lost. He was born in England and was originally a miner.

Certain dolls originated in this country have been imitated and stamped with a "made in Germany" label.

HATS

That's the way they're being featured this season, slightly wider, but with enough difference to make an old hat look out of date. We have the one that's becoming to you—the shape you want, the color you desire, and the workmanship and material you seek, and the slightly wider brim.

OBSTACLES IN LIFE SERMON

Yelderman Praises Men Of Instant Decision

"Which will you choose: Right living or wrong living? Human opinions or God's word? Faith and loyalty or unfaithfulness?"

These were the questions asked by Rev. R. R. Yelderman last night at the First Christian church in his sermon, "Rocks," using the term rocks as obstacles.

After telling the story of Jonathan, the warrior and man of God, who won a decisive victory for his army by scaling two great walls of rock, and praising Jonathan's instant decision to scale the rocky wall, Rev. Yelderman said that every victory of life must first scale those rocks which impede.

"No victory was ever won without a man having first made up his mind," Rev. Yelderman declared. The human race owes much to men who made decisions instantly—great decisions which did not take them ten years to make. As illustrations of this fact the speaker told of the great rocks confronting Abraham, Moses, Joshua, Elijah and Simon Peter.

"But we revere and respect these men during all these years that have followed because they were able to determine what was right and when determined they were able to make their decisions," he said. "Every one has had to face obstacles, had to face them as man to man. My passion today is to make the story of long years ago fit your life in October, 1924, to fit you to come to instant decisions. God help the man who can't."

"There are great walls of rock surrounding you today. How are you surmounting these barriers? Here are some of the problems of today—all them being walls. The first is the standard of living. On the one side is the wall of high living or real Christian living today. On the other side is low living, letting down the standard and doing what the majority does."

"The second problem is the wall of opinions. On the one side is the wall of human opinions, where some say that a man does not need to be a Christian to be saved. But over here is the wall of God's holy book. God says you must be a Christian to be saved, and you must believe, repent, confess and be baptized to be saved."

And still another problem is unfaithfulness. On the one side is the wall of unfaithfulness and on the other is unfaithfulness. Choose this day whether you will be a backslider or loyal and faithful to God and His church.

"Which will you choose?"

AT THE CAMEO

Dramatic intensity of life at sea in the day of the sailing vessel is drawn upon for "The Storm Daughter," with Priscilla Dean as the star, at the Cameo theatre.

The vessel on which many of the scenes were taken was a long history of windjamming, and the waters that washed her decks in thrilling intervals of stress came from every ocean. The ship was not a "set."

In such a setting is told the story of a woman who suffered a great wrong and many hardships at the hands of a man who had grown to hate all women. Prisoned on board the ship he commanded, suicide, her only apparent outlook, was scorned because she vowed to be revenged. Chance placed her tormentor in her power.

AT THE LIBERTY

"Rough Ridin'," starring Buddy Roosevelt, is showing at the Liberty theatre. "Rough Ridin'" teems with thrills, with three punches that tap the others. One is the rescue of the heroine from death by Buddy Roosevelt, who grabs the girl from in front of an express train atop a lofty trestle; another is a fall by Buddy and the villain over a high precipice into the river, and the third is Buddy's lifting of the heroine out of a speeding buckboard, while Buddy is galloping alongside the rig at a breakneck pace.

CLEARED CANAL TO BRING RUSH

Shipping Men Preparing To Cope With Demand

Official announcement from Major J. L. Schley, U. S. government engineer for the Galveston district, that the canal will be reopened to traffic Tuesday has set Sabine district shipping men preparing for the rush of loading the incoming vessels and getting the loaded outward bound ships underway at daylight tomorrow.

The tanker Solano, scheduled to go to the Port Arthur company's terminal at Smiths Bluff, was diverted to the Texas Company, Port Arthur, and loaded out Sunday, sailing today for Philadelphia. Saturday the S. B. Lund, Norwegian steamship scheduled to take cargo at Port Neches and Beaumont, sailed for New Orleans, having loaded out at the Texas Company's Port Arthur terminals.

Three tankers arriving to the Gulf company Sunday and today were the Gulfstream and Gulfcoast, both from Providence, Rhode Island; and the Gulfprince, from Bayonne. The Texas Company Shenandoah loaded out at the Gulf company terminals and sailed Sunday for Philadelphia. Today the Gulf company tanker Currier sailed for Galveston with a full cargo. The Norwegian steamship Rosegg, which discharged cargo at the Gulf Refining company here, finished and shifted to the Texas Company early today to load out about 1500 cases of oil for delivery at ports in the West Indies. The Rosegg is scheduled to sail late this afternoon or early Tuesday.

MORE DISEASED CATTLE DOOMED

Heroic Measures Adopted to Prevent Spread

HOUSTON, Oct. 5.—Several thousand head of cattle, which have been grazing on the 6,500 acre area on which the hoof and mouth plague was discovered, probably will be slaughtered, it was indicated late today.

There have been no new outbreaks of the epidemic, federal authorities stated, but the cattle will be condemned and killed in an effort to plug any channels through which the disease might spread, it was said.

With the epidemic scarcely a week old and with nearly 2,000 already slaughtered and buried, three more herds of 1,100 head were condemned today. They are the property of E. D. Singletary, John Milby and O. H. Lamb, ranchmen of near Houston. The herds condemned today are scheduled to be shot either Sunday or Monday.

Fear that the 50 head of cattle, known to have been missing from the herd of Perry McFadden and already condemned and killed, have infected thousands of other cattle, is given as the basis for the wholesale slaughter of animals among which no new outbreak has occurred.

That the strayed cattle have grazed over hundreds of acres of open range and among dozens of other herds is admitted by officials in charge. According to reports reaching here tonight, 1,000 head of lambs, destined to sheep feeders in the northwest and Colorado, are being held in the stock yards in San Angelo. The declaration of an embargo by Colorado authorities against all livestock from Texas, except from the northern sections of the state, is given as the reason.

Through the quarantine restrictions of Colorado and other bordering states, sheepmen of west Texas are today facing a serious situation, it is reported. Losses running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars are inevitable to those engaged in the sheep raising industry unless quarantine restrictions are modified immediately, it is said. Fort Worth is practically the only market now open for Texas livestock.

TOWN GROWS FAST.

NEEDS MORE TEACHERS

CANYON, Texas, Oct. 6.—Rapid growth in the population of this Panhandle town is reflected in the call sent to the West Texas Teachers college here by school principals in adjacent districts asking for additional teachers to handle the overflow attendance.

School superintendents of Muleshoe, Tulia Happy and Shamrock, have put in calls for more teachers. Many teachers in this section expect to add more teachers at the close of the cotton picking season.

Boils!
"Ouch!"

S.S.S. will rid you of boils, pimples, blackheads and skin eruptions!
DON'T CLOSE your eyes to the warning which Nature gives when angry, painful boils appear on your neck, face or other parts of your body. Boils, pimples and so-called skin disorders are the result of an impoverished condition of the blood and are not to be trifled with.
It is nothing more than folly to expect to get absolute relief from the use of local treatments, such as ointments, salves, etc. Such remedies may afford temporary relief but you want more than relief; you want a remedy which will rid you forever of the torturing disorders. And the one remedy which has no equal is S.S.S.
S.S.S. stops boils and keeps them from coming. S.S.S. builds blood power! That is what makes fighting blood. Fighting blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights skin eruptions—pimples, blackheads, eczema! It always wins! S.S.S. has been known since 1825 as one of the greatest blood builders, blood cleansers and system strengtheners ever produced. There are no unproven theories about S.S.S., the scientific results of each of its purely vegetable medicinal ingredients are admitted by authorities. Begin taking S.S.S. today and clear your skin of those blood disorders!
S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Gasoline War in Cotulla Cuts Price To New Low Level

COTULLA, Texas, Oct. 6.—Cotulla had a little gasoline price war all its own and while it lasted it made "joy juice" reductions in the east fade into insignificance.

Competition between firms started the ball rolling. The first reduction went to 15 cents. Daily it went a little lower as one firm underbid the other. Finally it slumped to the new low figure of 5 cents and halted, thereby hanging up a record for the entire country.

Tourists, it is said, are driving several miles out of their way to get to Cotulla these days.

CHAMP MELON MAN GROWS 108-POUNDER

DENTON, Oct. 6.—John P. Carter of Garza, near here, is the unofficial champion watermelon grower in Texas, according to melon "experts" here.

In 1923 Carter grew a melon which tipped the beams at 123 pounds and was rated as the largest of its kind ever produced.

Dry weather, however, intervened the past season and Carter was forced to be content with producing one melon weighing 108 pounds and two other "heftings" 100 pounds each. Ten melons out of Carter's patch totaled 1,920 pounds and 24 pushed the scale down to the 2,300 mark.

PROWLER, DRY AND HUNGRY, LOOTS HOME

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 6.—"Dry and hungry" were the outstanding motives furnished police by J. B. Kirkwood in reporting the robbery of his home by some prowler who neglected to leave his car.

A gallon of grapejuice and a jar of fig preserves was the only loot of the prowler, although several articles of clothing were handy, Kirkwood said.
